Buying a Telescope.

He came down from Xenia with his girl to see the sights, including the Zoo-zoo monkey. Neither of them knew much about city customs, and theaters had never contributed much to their amusement. So they concluded to go and see East Lynn at the Grand Opera House, and they went. Mr. Green saw a boy walking up and down the aisle with a lot of funny little toys in his hands, humming, "Opera glasses, twenty-five cents." He didn't know what the darned things were, but he was out on a bust and he didn't mind expenses. He saw that the young man who sat next to him had one of the things, which he and the lady with him were putting to their eyes continually. He'd risk a quarter on one of them anyhow, so he would; and the quarter was duly handed over to the boy and the glass obtained. By closely watching the operations of his neighbor, Mr. Green soon found out how to use the instrument, and he and his Lucinda went into raptures over the "consarn." Before the curtain rose they had with their aid, examined everything in the house, from cupids on the ceiling near the curtain, to the little bald spot on Louis Ballenberg's head in the orchestra. Just before the performance came to a close the boy went down into the parquette to get his glasses. He tapped Mr. Green on the shoulder: "What's up?" said Mr. Green, in a startled tone, half rising from his chair. "Give me that opera glass!" whispered the boy.

Mr. Green sank slowly back into his seat, while a look of utter contempt settled on his face. Passing the glasses to his girl he said: "Jest poke that there telescope into yer pocket, Mollie."

Then turning to the boy, he said, in a tone intended to wither: "You think you're smart, don't you? I paid you a quarter for that ar fixin' and you can't come none of your smart tricks on me. I ain't so green as I looks."

It took the combined efforts of three ushers for five minutes to persuade the young man from Xenia that he had only rented the opera glass, and not bought it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CONVICTED HIMSELF.—The French bar has lost in M. Chaix-d'Est-Ange one of its greatest masters. His greatest triumph, perhaps, and one of the greatest triumphs ever obtained at any bar, was achieved in the case of a man named Benoit, whom he was prosecuting for parricide. Benoit had all along persisted in declaring he was innocent, and there was nothing but circumstantial evidence against him. M. Chaix-d'Est-Ange resolved to employ one of the most startling and dramatic figures of rhetoric ever used in a court of law. Turning to the prisoner he placed the scene of the murder in vivid and striking language before him. "There," he cried, "sat your father, quietly reading the newspaper, near the window. He could not see who came into the room. You stole in on tip toe and crept close behind him. You paused one moment and then raised the hatchet—" "Yes, yes!" cried Benoit, "that's it; that's how I did it!" What the repeated interrogatories of the examining magistrates had failed to elicit from the murderer was forced from him by the eloquence of the barrister.—Manchester Guardian.

A FAIR OFFER.—Last evening a well dressed but dreadfully drunk man stumbled into Coroner Hodge's office and asked "Whurzeuer?" "That's me," replied Mr. Hodge. "All right," said the visitor, winking with deep cunning, "all right, I'm broke. Now (hic) you hola inques oner me an' (hic) divide or fees; eh, ole f'ler?" The Coroner sprung the trap and the body awaits identification.—G. H. News.

Shooting at Elko.

Henry Warren, one of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messengers, gives us the following particulars of a shooting scrape at Elko:

A man known as "Montana Charlie" was shot dead at Elko, on Tuesday night, by Bob Crosier. It appears that about 11 o'clock they were in the "Corner Saloon," where Crosier used some foul language to a woman who happened to be present. Charlie expostulated with him, saying that if he was not an old man he would make him (Crosier) apologize for his abuse of a woman; or words to that effect. Angry words passed between them and Crosier remarking that he would take a drink, went behind the bar, and procuring a revolver fired two shots at Charlie, the last penetrating his head and killing him instantly. Charlie had not been long in Elko, but was peaceable and well behaved, although he had the reputation of being a hard case. Crosier is a bad character, and the feeling seems very high against him, his act being pronounced by all as an unprovoked and cold blooded murder. The Coroner held an inquest on the remains of Charlie yesterday, but our informant had not heard the result of the inquisition.—Silver State.

PERUVIAN BULL-DOSING.—The election of a President in Peru is attended with interesting incidents. The last election was begun on October 17th, and continued eight days, ending in the victory of General Prado. The tables or polling booths are placed in the public squares, one in each parish, and the result depends less on the actual franchise, than on which party gets possession of these tables. In this instance, as usual, the parties armed themselves previous to the election, on the first day of which all places of business were closed. In Lima firing was begun at midnight, and at daylight all the tables had been captured by Prado's adherents. In the contest twenty-five persons were killed and sixty wounded. Prado's party was equally successful throughout the country. The killed and wounded were mainly members of political clubs, or candidates for small offices. Other citizens stayed indoors until the trouble was over.

*Mrs. Myra Clark Gaines is credited with the following opinions: "O dear!" she sighed, "what is to become of our country? I do wish the women had a voice in elections; they would soon settle matters! A woman's instincts are much better than a man's logic. She may make a fuss about little things, but in any great emergency she always comes up on the right side."

Frank Gassaway, author of "Billy Boy," "The Day Old Bet Was Sold," and other rot-gut poetry, has ceased to furnish gratuitous verifications for the San Francisco Chronicle, having secured a situation in a soap factory, where he is doing well.—Virginia Chronicle.

A Danbury girl has settled the matter. She says a frosty moustache is just like a plate of ice cream.

Conference Plan for Counting the Vote.

While the storm is upon us we lose in a large degree our interest in the great National question of who is the President elect, and how shall the question be determined. In fact politicians are those now mainly interested in its solution. But the question is now rapidly coming to a focus. About a fortnight ago, both branches of Congress appointed a committee of five from each body to report on a plan for counting the Electoral votes. Yesterday these committees made a report of the following method of settling the much controverted Presidential question. The tribunal will be composed of five Justices of the Supreme Court, five Senators and five Representatives. Should this plan be adopted by the House and Senate it will make the functions of the President of the Senate purely ministerial. But the character of the tribunal is a sufficient guarantee to the people of the United States that full justice will be done, and a question of extraordinary complexity and magnitude satisfactorily settled. Those who closely adhere to the letter of the Constitution interpose their purely legal objections, but those who are governed by the spirit of the Constitution and perceive that quibbles are only calculated to harass the American mind, and complicate a question which every patriot longs to see amicably settled, favor the proposed plan. Of the details of the plan we are not informed, neither do we know whether it will be accepted, but the committee have obtained the best counsel of the Nation, and have maturely studied this question in all its phases, scrutinized a number of plans, and now make a nearly unanimous report in favor of a tripartite tribunal. Shall this country be still ruled by selfish politicians or shall our interests as a people receive effective consideration from statesmen?

SURE CURE FOR BALDNESS.—Persons afflicted with baldness will be glad to know that a luxuriant growth may be produced by a very simple process described by Consul Stevens in his "Commercial Report on Nicotiana" for the past year, which has just been issued. In the Summer of 1875 Consul Stevens' attention was called to several cases of baldness among bullocks, cows and oxen, and the loss of manes and tails among horses. A former servant of the Consul, prematurely bald, whose duty it was to trim lamps, had a habit of wiping his petroleum-besmeared hands in the scanty locks which remained to him; and, after three months of lamp trimming experience, his dirty habit procured for him a much finer head of glossy black hair than he had ever possessed in his recollection. Struck by this remarkable occurrence Consul Stevens tried the experiment on two spaniels that had become suddenly bald, with wonderful success. The petroleum should be of the most refined quality, rubbed in vigorously and quickly with the palm of the hand, and applied at intervals of three days, six or seven times in all.—Poll. Mall Gazette.

MINING ACCIDENT.—W. H. Stockman, a carman in the Julia Consolidated Mine, had his right arm, between the wrist and elbow, terribly cut and bruised Wednesday while dumping a carload of ore. The load was to be left in a low place beside the track, and in order to dump it there the car had to be turned crosswise of the drift. As he was raising the car to discharge the contents, his hand slipped off and the elevated end descended, catching his arm between the car and the sharp rocks at the side of the drift. The result was two severe wounds, each one taking the man's arm nearly off. He was immediately taken to the surface, the wounds dressed, and in the evening he was comparatively comfortable.—Gold Hill News.

WHAT THE PRESS THINKS.—The World denounces the contrivance of the Committee on Counting the Electoral vote.

The Tribune regards the plan of the committee as revolutionary and dangerous.

The Sun commends it.

The Herald does not know enough of its details to give an opinion, but finds great satisfaction in the fact that the committee is agreed.

Legislature.

The Legislature seems to anticipate fun ahead and are rushing bills through in rather a hasty manner. Yesterday the bill to prohibit county assessors from being their own successors, passed by a vote of 14 to 10. We confess our inability to understand the objects of this bill, but with our present information concerning it we must say it seems a very poor one. A good assessor is the most valuable officer the county has. Much of the assessor's work is very much lessened and facilitated by familiarity with his office duties. A new man is open to imposition and is apt to do injustice to tax-payers. If he proves a good officer the people will elect him again as their assessor. Should he attempt to insure his re-election by under assessments the Board of County Commissioners, or Equalization, as the case may be, will make it decidedly uncomfortable for him. The law also has its hold upon him. Again, unless he justly assesses property he subjects himself to severe criticism and denunciations of partiality from property holders. For instance, A, B and C are, of course, very poor. A is, however, an influential man and possesses $5000 worth of property and is assessed for $2500; he wants it reduced to $1800 and by some stout swearing gets his property put down for $2000. B and C own $5000 worth of property each and are assessed for $3000. They get a reduction to $2700. After a time the status of affairs become known, an election occurs, and B and C vote for the other candidate, and thus, by the influence of his violation of the law, the County Commissioners and a large number of voting, unjustly dealt with property holders, defeats Mr. Assessor, and a new man takes his place. Whereas, by a faithful, honest discharge of his official duties he would have been re-elected. Thus it appears to our mind that it is clearly to the convenience and interest of the tax-payer, and therefore of the county to re-elect the honest, competent assessor to office, or at least to allow him to be eligible for re-election.

The bill amending the Criminal Practice Act so that juries can sentence prisoners guilty of murder in the first degree to the State Prison for life. Passed, 18 to 6. This is a good bill for these reasons: The theory of punishment is that an injury has been done to certain parties and the State. This injury is not only to be prevented from recurring, but also to recompense the State the loss which it has suffered. When a man is hanged for the murder of another man, the hanged man is momentarily punished, but the State has lost the services of two men. By compelling a man to labor for his natural life, directly for the State, the equivalent labor of two men working indirectly for the State is secured, and the murderer is shut out from society so that he can do no one any harm. He is also more severely punished than by hanging, and the demoralizing effects of a public execution is avoided. The abolition of capital punishment is only a question of time at all events. It is not that misguided humanitarian sympathy for the unfortunate man dictates our statements, for the criminal is the party least to be considered on this question. Society or the State is the dominant and injured party. Vengeance is no part of law; justice and policy are controlling elements in the punishment of crime. Hence, we need not be governed by a relic of the old common law, which met the wants of a less advanced civilization but does not judiciously apply in this age.

TELEGRAPHIC.

The Senate and House committees on counting the electoral vote last evening agreed upon a report which will be signed to-day by all the members of both committees, except Senator Morton and one Democratic Representative.

The tribunal for the decision of the controverted questions will be tripartite, one branch of which will be composed of five Justices of the U. S. Supreme Court. The other two branches will probably consist of five members from the Senate and five from the House.

The political situation in New Orleans has not materially changed in the last few days. The dual government is still maintained, and General Augur, who received orders to maintain matters in statu quo, is in a quandary as to what course to pursue in reference to the seizure of the Supreme Court, Arsenal, and Police stations, by the Democrats. He awaits orders from Washington.

The Oregon $8,000 humbug is yet undergoing a political examination. Thus far it has been ascertained that the money was never used, and that Tilden had nothing to do with the affair.

The Republican Senators and Assemblymen of Pennsylvania have resolved not to place the State militia on a war footing at present, but to await the turn of events.

Regarding the Florida electoral vote, information of quo warranto has been decided upon the demurrer in favor of the Democrats. This decision will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

By a party vote in the House it was decided that the papers of the Louisiana Returning Board should be given to the House. Wells and Anderson of the Board, arrived in Washington yesterday, and were arrested by order of the House, for contempt.

The House committee on appropriations are ready to report on the Indian bill. It appropriates $4,276,000, or $272,000 less than last year.

The Eastern question is still in a muddled condition, and it is impossible to say whether war will result or peace be insured.
